In a trailblazing interracial community in southern Georgia, Habitat for Humanity began with a simple idea: everyone deserves a decent home. That idea sparked a global movement.

Today, we work in hundreds of communities worldwide, uniting families, volunteers, and partners to build, repair, innovate, and advocate. Decent, affordable housing helps families build financial stability, improve health, and access new opportunities.

As we mark 40 years of Habitat for Humanity of Greater Sacramento, we celebrate our growth—from annually serving a few families in our early history to now serving thousands of people each year through builds, repairs, and community projects.

Thanks to supporters like you, Habitat is uniquely equipped to tackle the housing crisis. Our experience helps more families move into safe homes, where children can learn, play, and thrive. We won't stop until everyone has a decent place to live. Join us.
